Strategic Partnership between Peek Traffic and Telvent

Their combined capabilities will allow traffic operators to increase safety, reduce traffic congestion and streamline operations

January 11th, 2010 - Peek Traffic Corporation, a driving force of innovation in the intelligent traffic control industry, is pleased to announce a strategic partnership with Telvent, the leading real-time IT solutions and information provider. The scope of the partnership involves collaboration on joint transportation traffic projects in mid and large sized cities in North America; this partnership allows both firms to utilize their expertise in traffic control, and conduct joint research and development efforts.

The partnership allows both firms to utilize their complementary technical transportation management capabilities. Peek Traffic designs and manufactures traffic control products and solutions that will work in conjunction with Telvent's user-friendly interface, to streamline road operations. This new relationship will focus on securing and implementing contracts in North America.

This alliance will combine resources towards development of "Next Generation Traffic Control Systems". According to Alejandro Brunell, CEO for Peek Traffic Corporation "We are confident that with Telvent we will be able to enhance our product compatibility and provide an integrated adaptive control system. It will also provide an opportunity for continued growth of our organization and affirm our commitment to offer the best, sustainable solutions for traffic technologies."

Telvent's CEO, Ignacio Gonzalez added "Telvent is excited for its partnership with one of the leading providers of traffic management equipment. In collaboration, both firms continue to provide transportation services that demonstrate a long history of expertise and cost effective transportation solutions throughout North America."
